As a home brand, we’re uniquely attuned to what people want in their daily lives. That knowledge gives us a powerful lens on how to make work environments more personal and meaningful.”

Work is changing. We’re connected everywhere, access to information is increasing, devices are multiplying... but people continue to be the key to competitive advantage. As the boundaries of work and home dissolve into just ‘life,’ the workspace has become our home base. Exclusively with Inscape, west elm has designed 50+ pieces for the way we work now.

DESIGNED FOR LIFE
Building on our home expertise, our office solutions merge style with smart design—from rich wood and fabric finishes that make work more welcoming, to benching systems that can be configured (and reconfigured) for your evolving office. Workspaces are for people. They should be personal.

Featuring four styles—mid-century, industrial, modern and contemporary—each collection is designed to flexibly fit into a variety of layouts, from private to open office plans.

We know that nothing is one-size-fits-all, and we’ll work with you to tailor our solutions to your space.

MADE FOR WORK + WELLNESS
Desks are developed with sit-stand legs, allowing employees to adjust the height of their work surface from sitting to standing.

Ergonomic details—such as movable monitor arms and contoured task chairs—support the people who use these pieces day in and day out.

Our approach to design is democratic—whether you’re a small architecture firm or an international corporation, we’re here to help you find the right fit for your business.

THE BEST WORKSPACES BALANCE PRIVATE & PUBLIC ENVIRONMENTS TO LIFT PRODUCTIVITY & PERFORMANCE

“Design is in west elm’s DNA. Workspace innovation is in Inscape’s. It just made sense that, by working together, we could create something completely unique in the commercial furniture market.”

Jim Stelter, CEO, Inscape

We set out to create a full suite of solutions for the way we work now.

Our own corporate culture was our starting point. We envisioned what we’d want for a variety of environments, from livable offices to communal conference rooms to social spaces with all the comforts of home.

Our design team curated the best of the eclectic west elm aesthetic and distilled four distinctive collections, refined especially for the workspace.

Our Mid-century Collection marries classic forms with attention to detail, in warm walnut tones accented with bronze. The Modern Collection’s streamlined design combines storage with space dividers for multi-functional floor planning. The Industrial Collection brings utilitarian workshop style to modern offices, pairing warm wood finishes with airy steel frames. Our most modular option, the Contemporary Collection, comes in three styles—Truss, Scandi and Strata, all available in a range of flexible configurations.

From home to work, we design creative, custom and personal environments for people.

CONCENTRATION ENVIRONMENTS FOR FOCUSING

Employees report distraction as one of the top impediments to productivity. Whether an employee works in a management, creative, technical or sales support role, they all need dedicated time to complete the task at hand. Great workspaces prioritize both individual and collaborative work. Our desks, task chairs and lighting systems provide the focused, private space people need to work efficiently and effectively.

CREATIVITY ENVIRONMENTS FOR LEARNING

Creative problem solving requires the right balance of time alone and teamwork. People learn in different ways, and rapid changes in technology and training are amplifying the need for simple but flexible solutions. Ways of working with remote colleagues and smaller working sessions all need to be taken into account. Designed for small groups, our benching systems support the technology and tasks that lead to conversation and ideation.

COLLABORATION ENVIRONMENTS FOR MEETING

Collaboration is critical, but in today’s workplace it means much more than just meetings and roundtables. Breakthroughs happen in both formal and informal sessions. As the X and Y generations make up a larger share of the workforce, technology, familiarity and environments that support effortless communication will only become more important. Conference rooms and break-out spaces foster comfort and creativity when they’re outfitted with communal tables, chairs and benches.

COMMUNITY ENVIRONMENTS FOR SOCIALIZING

Lobbies, cafés, event rooms—these are the social spaces where work cultures are created. Chance encounters can be just as important to a breakthrough as structured sessions. Many of the best insights and ‘aha’ moments come from hallway and café conversations. Soft seating, access to technology and furniture designed for fluid floorplans can spark the innovation that happens in communal spaces. Our furniture, accessories and lighting make them extraordinary, engaging places to be.
“These collections evolved from west elm’s core aesthetics. It’s been exciting to re-imagine them in a new way for the workspace.”

Our Industrial Collection works with a breadth of aesthetics—pair it with mid-century, modern or contemporary chairs for three distinct looks.

Spark creativity with spaces for concentration and collaboration. Storage pieces double as space dividers in open plan offices.
